NORTHERN TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1880.

Cheboygan in the Salt District. The TRIBUNE has at various times advocated the organization of a company for the purpose of sinking a well to test the theory of geologists that the salt basin underlying Michigan would be found to include the Cheboygan region. At one time there was considerable talk of a company being organized for such a purpose, but no steps were taken to effect such an organizawere taken to effect such an organiza-tion and the matter ended in talk. Our attention has been again called to the subject by the recent report of Samuel S. Garrigues, State Inspector of sait. In his report he claims that Cheboygan being in the Helderberg formation, there are good grounds for supposing that borings will develop the same results that have been obtained at Godrich, Canada. where three separate stratas of rock salt have been found. Prof. Winchell, some years since, in speaking of the great salt basin underlying our state said: "In regard to the prospect for the manufacture of salt, geology simply testifies that the great Onondago salt group underlies the entire district, probably within three hundred feet, and that ably within three hundred feet, and that there is no evidence that it will not prove as saliferous in the Cheboygan region as at any other place." In view of these statements and the success that has attended efforts in other places we are of the opinion that the probabilities of success are such as to justify an expenditure of a sufficent sum to definitely ascertain whether or not this region is included in the salt dis-

Should the claim of Mr. Garrigues, that borings would develop the same results that have been obtained at Godrich, Ont. prove true, Cheboygan would at once secure an important industry for Godrich salt ranks among the best that is made. Our shipping facilities are not surpassed by any point upon the lakes, and the completion of the Jackson Lansing & Saginaw road, which is now an assured fact, at an early day, would increase these facilities by giving an utlet during the winter while navigation is closed. The cost of a well to test the matter would be but trifling, even if it should prove a failure, compared to From Primary School for uccess. We would like to have our business men, and especially our mill men, give the matter some thought and let nething be done to see if a sufficient amount could not be raised to test the question of salt or no salt. What say Postoffice Improvement. Postmaster Ford has shown us the plans of important improvements he is going to have made at once. The entire inside of the office is to be remodeled and fitted up in a handsome manner adding greatly to the convenience of both postmaster and our citizens, and more than doubling the facilities. The plans were drawn by Joseph Cochran and the work is to be done by Smith Brothers. The following diagram will serve to give an idea of the proposed change, and show the advantage of the improvement:

front. Both sides will be fitted up with call boxes and lock boxes, the plans providing for 324 of the former and 105 of most complete of its kind ever the latter. In the present arrangement there are only 140 call boxes and 80 lock boxes. The money order department, tion of BOOKS for old and young; under the new arrangement, will be situated on the right side of the room as shown in the above diagram. The en-Albums; that elegant line of Silk trance to the office being upon the left Velvet Frames; those Albums in side. The general delivery under the present arrangement makes it almost impossible, for those having lock boxes ery put up in beautiful boxes, suit- in its vicinity, to get their mail imable for jewel cases, glove and mediately after the arrival and distribution. The change has been much needed and we are glad new Games, etc. I also have a that Mr. Ford is going to provide stock of all kinds of Toys, which an office in keeping with the growth I will sell cheap in order to close business of the office, and know that our citizens will appreciate Mr. Ford's efforts

City. Last week we stated that Hannah. Lay & Co., of Traverse City, had purchased the propeller T. S. Faxton to run in connection with their other steamers City of Traverse and City of Grand Rapids. From the Traverse City Herald we learn that the Faxton is a boat about the size of the City of Grand Rapids and is much like it in general apperrance. It will be entirely refitted and put in elegant shape. It carries a strong, compound engine and is a rapid and handsome boat. These two fine steamers will form 13 74 172 45 a daily line from Traverse City to Mackinac, one boat leaving each of the above named points every morning during the pleasure season, making the entire run by daylight, stopping at the principal points. This line will do the passenger business for the G. R. & I. railroad, between Petoskey and Mackinac, the railroad company putting on no boats nex year. The formation of this line cannot fail to be beneficial to this entire section which has become to be the most popular pleasure resort in the country Every increase of facilities for travel will attract the attention of tourists more and more toward this portion of the state, for nowhere can more varied attractions be found, and when once here they will be sure to take it all in.

The Census, The following table shows the popula. tion of the several counties in this section according to the census of 1880, as officially ascertained and reported by bureau at Washington also their population in 1874 according to the state census and in 1870 according to the U.S. census of that year:
